Sugar shack in Limerick revealed

By CYNTHIA MATTHEWS

The Hidden Roots Maple Farm on Tufts Lane in Limerick opened to the public on Sunday, March 26 for Maine Maple Sunday. Abbie and Nick Storer of Limerick have been working a good six months to get their sugar shack up and running for the big event. Both work full-time, and the sugar shack has become their passion. They built the shack using lumber from their property, got a new boiler/evaporator, and ran lines from the trees to the holding tank. With the sap running, they had fifty buckets out, and 115 trees on pipelines.

A couple of weeks ago, however, they decided they weren't ready to make their debut and open to the public. But when Sunday came, they were at the shack anyway, had some friends over and thought, "Should we put the sign out and just see what happens?" And they did!

Over fifty people stopped in to see what they had to offer, and found some of the bottles still warm from being freshly filled from the boiler. "It was so awesome," said Abbie. "There were so many new faces. It was a little

After just a little over a month of being closed due to a rodent infestation, Plummer's Waterboro Ace Hardware has full clearance and is now open once again! Cindy Plummer reports that the biohazard clean up is complete and the reconstruction has consisted of all new dry wall, insulation and paint. She notes that the majority of the work will not be noticed, and they still have a lot of behind the scenes work to do.

According to Plummer, the Waterboro town officials, Lisa Bennett, Matt Bors and Glenn Charette have been very helpful throughout the process. "They inspected Tuesday and gave us the approval to reopen on Wednesday." The tests the store passed included air quality, all the new construction codes, and checking that fire safety requirements were reinstalled properly.

Staff has been at work since the Waterboro closure, working in the other stores run by the Plummer family. Now they have the task of cleaning every piece of merchandise that was left in place when everything around the perimeter was taken out and the walls replaced. While there were plastic curtains sectioning off the periphery, drywall dust and other remnants of the remodeling work need to be removed from the rest of the countless items that line the shelves.

Bonny Eagle wins State Drama Festival for first time in 20 years

By CYNTHIA MATTHEWS

The Bonny Eagle Drama Club performed the play, Song of Extinction by EM Lewis, competing in the Maine State Drama Festival, March 24-25 at Falmouth High School, never dreaming they would win. "We didn't think we would win and didn't try to focus on that, as we didn't want to get our hopes up," said Senior Emily Eberhart, who played Lily Forrestal. "We went into this focusing more on the experience it would give us."

March madness at Alfred school

The busiest place in Alfred this past Saturday was the Alfred Elementary School gym.

Not only were there three large bounce houses doing a busy business but there were hoops to navigate, a hungry, hungry hippo game and Super Mario game. Students at Massabesic High School patiently instructed the youngsters how to navigate the games and collected their tickets.

The cost was nominal. Three tickets for $1 for games (winners received candy) and $5 gave you permission to bounce in each bounce house to your hearts content. A bounce bracelet helped you keep track. Besides this there was a lunch which could be purchased. It was all sponsored by the Parent Teacher Student Association.

Seed planting at woods edge

Three trays of seeds were planted during a seed planting project at Woods Edge this past week, proof that everyone is thinking spring. Using commercial trays made it easy – wet the material already in the trays, drop in seeds (tomatoes, peppers, cauliflower, broccoli, etc. plus marigolds to deter insects) label and position the plastic covers. Planting them indoors will provide an early start. Others were set aside for planting outdoors. The planters were Penny Morgan, Brenda Allen, Shelley Whitney and Rick Talmer who plan to keep an eye on this project, which is kept in the community room in a mini greenhouse.

Alfred wins village planting grant

The trees on the village green haven't been doing well. For that reason the selectmen applied for a grant to replace them, through the Urban and Community Forestry Program.

They were recently informed it has been approved, to commence when both parties have signed the agreement. The award is for $8,000 to be matched by the applicant (the town). The grant will end on June 30, 2018 when all terms have been satisfied. The funding is provided through the USDA Forest Service, State and Private Forestry.

The grant will cover not only the trees on the village green but those on the library lawn.

Archery classes

Glenn Dochtermann has announced two upcoming safety classes. There will be an archery safety class on Thursday, April 6 at Town Hall from 6 to 9 p.m. and on Saturday, April 15 from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Both classes are required. Registration is $5. On April 15 there will be a cross bow safety class from 5 to 9 p.m.

Women's Connection

Monday, April 10 at 6:30 p.m. at The Barn at the Sanford Country Club a program and dinner will be held, hosted by York County Women's Connection. Jan Landry will show her purses, bags and more, all handmade items by her, great ideas for gifts or a new spring outfit. Ella Pickering of Blackstone, MA will talk about the joys and challenges of blending two families. She found that "she had so many children –she had to find out what to do!"

For reservations or cancellations call Lovedy, 793-8104; Carmen 929-6509; or Gladys 324-7413. The cost is $16 including tax and tip. Email is cdo1490@yahoo.com. All are welcome to attend.

Parish church news

Worship leader on April 2 will be Eric Ducharme.

Sara Bartlett will be the worship leader on Palm Sunday, April 9, with communion being served.

Church Council meets at 7 p.m. on April 3.

The next free community supper will be held Monday, April 24.

A spring yard sale will be held June 10, chaired by Pat Vertefeuille.

It has been confirmed that Festival Day will be held July 15. Activities in which the Parish Church will be involved include marching in the parade, penny raffle, yard sale, sanctuary tours, pony rides, self guided tours of the old cemetery, and ham and bean supper.

Brick town hall restoration

The restoration of eleven windows on the second floor of Limerick's Brick Town Hall on Main Street has commenced. Many of the window casings will be completely restored, windows will be restored or rebuilt, all will be reglazed, weather stripping applied and painted. The windows will also be painted inside and out.

Jacobs Glass, of Winslow, is doing the restoration work at the Brick Town Hall and the project is expected to be completed by the end of May. All work completed will meet the National Park Service (NPS) Standards, as this building is on the US NPS National Register of Historic Places which deems it worthy of preservation. The National Register is administered by the National Park Service, which is part of the U.S. Department of the Interior.

The Brick Town Hall was built in 1860 from old growth timber, brick and granite. Granite was acquired from a local quarry and hauled over roads via oxen for its foundation. The building is three stories high and has been employed by the town citizenry for a number of uses over its 157-year history.

The town select board, an appointed advisory committee to the board and Community Development Corporation in Auburn, have developed and are overseeing the project. The project is being funded through the generosity of Limerick taxpayers and grants acquired from Morton-Kelly Charitable Trust, The Maine Community Foundation: Belvedere Historic Preservation Fund and the Narragansett Number One Foundation.

OPEN FOR BUSINESS

Busy cleaning items off one of the shelves, staffer Edith Cote says she is so grateful to be back at work in Waterboro. While it was very helpful to have work in the interim, her work and family schedules mesh better now that she is back at her home store. Manager Randy Curato, also glad to be back at work in Waterboro, says it will take some time to clean all the inventory, but she's glad the Plummers decided to "Do the job right," and do the complete remodel of the interior of the story.

Cindy Plummer says the owners and workers alike have been anxious and are now excited to begin serving their customers again. In an email, she wrote, "It was very difficult to keep telling them that we were closed and couldn't allow them inside. It's a pleasure to be part of such a wonderful and understanding community."

Restaurant aiming at opening soon

On the other side of the wall, Asian Taste owner David Ma, is working toward reopening in a week and a half if all goes as planned. Hoping to have all new flooring completed by the beginning of the week of April 3, furniture and all that makes it a restaurant will soon be in place after that.

Ma points out new drywall and paint on the walls and new ceilings, and says, "We'll have a new kitchen and new dining room for people to come and eat in." His assistant Sherri Alcock reports that air and other tests have come back all clear, and an exterminator has been checking daily, finding no evidence of any problem. "We're doing everything we can to be open as soon as possible."

Town looking at marijuana referendum

Options for the direction for the town to take in the face of the new state law regarding marijuana has been a topic of discussion by the selectmen for some weeks. The question of whether to prohibit commercial marijuana uses was discussed at a former meeting. At the March 28 meeting, the board discussed the question of how to get feedback from the public. Selectman chair Dennis Abbott said that the recent vote on the state referendum is not necessarily a measure of public attitudes, as many may have voted for recreational use and not for stores or clubs, etc. In attempting to get an answer, one option is for the town to have a referendum vote on commercial uses and wording of a referendum question is in the works that will be consistent with the wording of the state law, as a possible vote to be on the June ballot. Another option is for the board to decide by a yes or no vote on commercial uses, and then, if there is interest, citizens can petition to reverse that decision.

TIF map – Version #3 passed out

Discussion is ongoing about creating a TIF (Tax Increment Financing District) in East Waterboro, at this time including an area from Jellerson Road on the east to the CMP pole line near the field north of The Blast From the Past Diner.

sentative to the ecomaine board, reported February's recycling rate for Waterboro at 18.9 percent, which is consistent for the past three or four years.

Abbott reported that ecomaine is getting ready to collect and compost food waste, and Scarborough and South Portland are getting ready to launch pilot programs. Waterboro facility manager Clint Andrews is certified to manage an organics composting system, but Abbott says it will require the involvement of an active Transfer Station and Recycling Committee, saying, "Maybe that is in our future, but it will require more active members of the committee."

Meals on Wheels has openings

Select Board member Tim Neill spent a shift traveling with a Meals on Wheels volunteer and learned that meals on wheels, has openings for more customers 60 years or older who can show they have need. Anyone interested should contact the Southern Maine Agency on Aging.

Youth turkey hunting

On March 19, twenty young hunters ranging in ages from 7 to 15, gathered at Waterboro Town Hall for Waterboro Parks and Rec's annual free seminar about youth turkey hunting, once again led by State Police Trooper Steve "Stubby" Stubbs. The students learned turkey hunting strategies, firearms safety, decoy use and more and Massabesic High School students, and members of the National Honor Society, Jackie Bearse and Logan Champlin were on hand to assist with the seminar. Maine Game Warden Carleton Richardson taught a segment on youth turkey hunting laws as well as hunting ethics and local taxidermist Pete Sterling gave attendees advice on where to shoot a turkey to keep it in good condition for mounting.

Stubbs knows you can't just sit kids down for three hours, lecture them and expect them to learn, saying, "I figured out early on in doing this that kids need to be entertained to keep their attention." He adds, "We present our program in an exciting, fun way, with dozens of door prizes, great raffles and lots of humor to go around." One of the many highlights was the turkey-calling contest where prizes were given for best call in different age groups.

Deborah Tait of Brownfield is one of a dedicated group of volunteers who work to support Stubbs in offering these workshops for youth. They currently have upcoming classes in Brownfield and Mars Hill. FMI email beginner-turkeyhunting@yahoo.com.

Budget discussions Moving Forward

Discussions for the FY 17-18 budget will continue when the select board holds a workshop with the Budget Committee on Tuesday, April 4 at 5 p.m. Selectmen hope to finalize their recommendations on the budget to go on the June ballot in the next weeks.

Flower power

On March 27 the Girl Scout Troop #1477 was welcomed to Nature's Way Greenery in Limerick, owned by Jennifer Richardson who gave a tour of the greenhouses and then donated pots and flowers so all the girls could make their own flower arrangements, a step towards earning the Flowers Badge. The girls are actively working on the Business Owner Badge too and used this opportunity to ask some great questions about starting up, owning, and running a business. DRAMA CLUB cast and crew did just that, bringing home a win after a 20-year dry spell.

Before heading to the state competition, the group performed for the local community one last time on March 23. "We gave it our best to make the performance worth their (the audience's) while," said Eberhart. "It was an emotional performance," she continued. "My teacher came up to me afterwards with tears in her eyes and told me how proud of us she was."

"The overall state experience was amazing," Eberhart reported. "Falmouth is such a friendly school and they try to make everyone feel as welcome as possible."

Bonny Eagle was not expecting a win. "I remember our winning moment so clearly," said Eberhart. "It felt so surreal. When they called out our name, I couldn't believe it," she continued. "I ran on stage, grabbed the plaque and held on to it like it was a life preserver!" And according to Eberhart, the entire cast and crew felt the same. "All of us felt disbelief, shock, exhilaration, excitement...It's a moment I'll never forget."

Eberhart added, "I'm so proud knowing that our drama club brought a state trophy home to our school for the first time in twenty years."

Unfortunately, the Bonny Eagle cast and crew of Song of Extinction will not be able to participate in the New England Regional Competition, as most of the cast and crew will be in Florida, singing at Disney with the High School Select Chorus. What a talented group!

Instead, Bangor High School, the state runner-up, will go the New England Festival, April 20-22, representing Maine with their show, an adaptation of Jabberwocky, directed by Deb Elz-Hammond.

SUGAR SHACK

overwhelming, but everyone was so excited about our sugar shack." Husband Nick added, "I loved pleasing people. Everyone was happy, and many offered good suggestions for next year."

The Stors live on Stonehill Rd in Limerick, and in 2014, Nick and his Dad made their first boiler out of a 50-gallon oil drum and a kitchen sink with a firebox inside. They tapped trees in their yard, and boiled the sap outside in their homemade boiler.

Abbie grew up on the Tufts Farm, there on Tufts Lane. "My grandfather was adopted by Arthur Tufts, and the farm was left to him when Arthur died," she explained. "Lots of people have told us stories about working on the farm here." It was this idea of a working farm that sparked the Storer's interest in wanting to use the farm for something good. "There's 80 acres," she said, "and with the height of the land, gravity makes it easy to run lines. And there are more maple trees here, too!"

Nick also grew up in Limerick, and in his teens, worked with his Dad, helping with the maple sugaring. "I just found a passion for it," he said. "I always wanted to get back into it, and began experimenting on my own."

"I enjoy standing around the boiler with friends and making memories. It's like a gathering place," said Abbie. "It's about family and tradition. We like it small and authentic, and family-oriented. And we want to have fun doing it."

Nick said one of the best things about maple sugaring is the quality time he has had with his father. "He's been there the whole way."

Hidden Roots Maple Farm is "hidden" on Tufts Lane, on the Limington-Limerick town line. You can order maple syrup from Hidden Roots all year long, by emailing them at storemaple@gmail.com, calling 206-5206 or finding them on Facebook.

"We want to thank everyone who stopped by, supporting us, offering tips. You really boosted our confidence," said Nick. "It was a last minute decision (to open), but we will never regret it."
